Vise is unlocked and the jaw can be open or closed by merely pulling on the handle, thus doing away with the screw vise process. When it is desired to clamp the work, merely pushing on the handle brings the jaws in contact with the object to be held or clamped, and then the handle is turned as in an ordinary screw vise. There are no springs used in its construction. It is made with solid jaw and flat base, or with solid jaw and swivel base, and each in six sizes.
